xPLM Solution provides integration solutions and deployment services to the PLM industry

Since April 1, 2005 xPLM Solution develops integration solutions between industry leading CAD, PLM and ERP systems and provides deployment services to the PLM industry.

xPLM Solution was established by a PLM industry veteran management team and engineering staff of CAD, PLM, and ERP integration developers and service personnel. xPLM's industry PLM experience dates back to the origins of EDM/PDM products in Europe as several of xPLM Solution's key members were part of the original employees of Eigner + Partner founded in 1985, by the world renown Engineering Management visionary Prof. Dr. Martin Eigner. xPLM's development and service organization has been at the forefront of developing and deploying robust integrations for CAD, PLM and ERP systems.

The management team and engineering staff of xPLM Solution brings with them more than 250 years of accumulated professional experience in the PLM market. The specialized knowledge and experience defining and configuring PLM based processes of complex engineering environments define xPLM Solution's core competency.

All integration solutions are built upon a common integration platform with system-specific connectors. The J2xPLM integration platform consists of components and basic services, which are required for system integration, this ensures that local and project specific data can be respectively synchronized with enterprise wide available product data. In addition, required standardized processes are provided to support specific integration interaction and data exchange between the targeted systems. A configuration tool allows for the customization of processes and data models. xPLM connectors provide the system specific adapters to access the respective applications based on standard application interfaces and integration technologies of the system providers.
